Green & Just Celebrations:

a purchasing guide for Washington's Jewish families

Jews United for Justice (JUFJ) has produced a little booklet with a big mission: to work for the day when every one of the $30 million dollars that Jewish families in our area spend on weddings and bar and bat mitzvah celebrations every year will be spent in a way that reflects Jewish values. Each section of the booklet offers specific suggestions for how families can make purchasing choices for their special day in ways that are mindful of workers' rights and environmental impact. The book is illustrated throughout with Jewish teachings, and with the real-life stories of more than forty DC-area families who made creative green and just choices for their own celebrations. The booklet is suitable for use in a wide variety of Jewish communities and congregations.

While supplies last, these booklets are available FREE to rabbis, officiants, teachers, congregations and schools in the Greater Washington area who will use them in their work with bar and bat mitzvah families and with couples planning Jewish weddings or commitment ceremonies.

Every page features practical advice on each aspect of planning a meaningful Jewish celebration in the Washington area, including:

- Venue and Accommodations
- Connecting Tzedakah and Service to Your Celebration
- Registries and Gifts
- Invitations, Programs, Placecards, and Bentschers
- Wedding Rings and Other Jewelry
- Clothing
- Kippot
- Centerpieces and Decorations
- Food
- Favors
- Leftovers and Cleaning Up
- Transportation, Travel, and Honeymoon
